Signals of Distress.

Norway People Should Know How to Read and Heed Them.

Sick kidneys give many signals of distress. The secretions are dark, contain a sediment.

Passages are frequent, scanty, painful. Backache is constant day and night. Headaches and dizzy spells are frequent.

The weakened kidneys need quick help. Don't delay! Use a special kidney remedy.

Doan's Kidney Pills cure sick kidneys, backache and urinary disorders.

South Paris evidence proves this statement. E. H. Gammon, living on Main St., South Paris, Me., says, "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills and have not the slightest hesitancy in giving my name to be used as an endorser of this remedy."

Doan's Kidney Pills cured me in a short time of a severe attack of backache and soreness across my kidney regions. I advise others in need of a kidney remedy to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial. I procure the remedy from P. A. Shurtliff & Co. drug store."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cts. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and no other. 11-12

Boys and Girls

Norway is so far north and so much off to itself that the people, especially those in the interior of the land, have many of the customs of their ancestors of centuries ago. The farm or peasant women, as they are called, have no trouble at all following the latest fashions, as country women in America do. Perhaps 500 years ago the Norwegian farm women devised a dress that was warm, comfortable and convenient, and their female descendants have copied their styles ever since. Modern tourists who travel all over the world have of numbers, and they have seen the ancient dress of the peasant women there, and they say it is very picturesque.

Babies in Norway are trussed up in woolen wrappings till they look like an Indian-papoose in its cradle. The infants have to be kept warm in that cold land, but it does seem as if the poor little things ought to have the free use of their arms and legs.

Only one-tenth of the land in Norway can be used for farming, and the people are old enough—have to work busily for a living. The cold and the poverty together cause them to hustle as hard as they can. The hustling, the pure mountain and sea air and the simple habits of the Norwegian people have made a strong race. They are quick tempered too.

So soon as they are old enough many of the Norwegian boys leave their country and go to make their living on the sea. On the ships of all nations there are many Norwegian seamen. On our own ships there are far more Norwegian and Swedish sailors than American.

While the men are away at sea the women and children are left at home to do the farming and teaching. The considerable of this live stock consists of herds of domesticated reindeer. There are not many wild reindeer left in Norway. Oats, hay, rye, barley and potatoes are the chief crops.

All the world over there are people difficult to do. Intelligent people think hard to find out the best and easiest way to do them. This is the case with Norwegian farming. It is hard to make farming pay in Norway, so the people studied the best way to till their little fields. They got agricultural machinery too and so far as their scanty soil products they have the name of being the most intelligent farmers in Europe. Women and children tend the cows. To teach girls to make delicious butter and cheese, dairy schools were established and there thoroughly scientific instruction is given. Much butter and cheese are exported from Norway. On account of the extreme cold the houses for both people and animals have to be warmly built with double walls. The roof of some cow stables are covered with growing moss. The big stones along the edge are put there to keep the wind from blowing the moss roof off. It is so cold in the interior of Norway that even the hay is to be heated in winter.

One quite young college girl in Norway conducts a chicken farm of her own. She is also a scientific beekeeper. It is a wonder more American boys and girls on farms do not keep bees. They are very interesting insects, apart from the honey they give us. Another girl in Norway makes a specialty of pig raising and gets much money from it. These women and young people whom the seafaring men leave behind in Norway to take care of the country are not at all to be pitied. They are strong and very healthy, as well as courageous and intelligent.

Foxes Have Scales.

K. Toldt, a Vinnese naturalist, says that foxes have scales as well as hair upon their skins. From this he argues that they have descended from ancestors having horny skins, like the armadillos and the anteaters.

Every one who has examined a rat closely knows that its tail is scaly throughout its length. Those who are familiar with wild boars know also that there are parts of their bodies on which there are distinct scales.

Wherever the scales are found on these creatures with hairs as well, these hairs grow in tufts at regular intervals between the scales. As this form of growth is often found in animals which have no scales it is believed that when it exists it proves origin from a race that once bore scales.

Especially is this true of the fox. If his skin be examined closely it will be found that the hairs are arranged in groups of three bunches, each bunch containing fourteen or fifteen hairs, and that the skin has the appearance of that of a scaled ant eater from which the scales have been plucked.

Under the microscope it looks scaly. Herr Toldt says the fox is one of the mammals that can be most correctly compared with the reptiles, being of a primitive and very slightly specialized type although famous for its cunning.

DIXFIELD.

A. H. Stockbridge has been confined to the house with an attack of the grip. Jamie Sturtevant was sick at his parents' home on Weld street; also I. O. Bab was on the sick list.

W. W. Foster, Don Gates, John Harlow and several others have been in Boston attending the automobile show.

Stomach Distress.

Every family here ought to keep some Diapiesin in the house, as any one of you may have an attack of Indigestion or Stomach trouble at any time, day or night.

This harmless preparation will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour stomach five minutes afterwards.

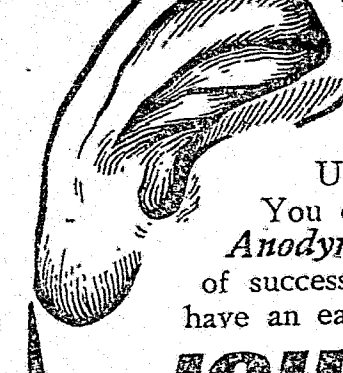

If your meals don't tempt you, or what little you do eat seems to fill you, or lays like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn that is a sign of Indigestion.

Ask your Pharmacist for a fifty-cent case of Diapiesin and take one triangle after supper tonight. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, Nausea, Debilitating Headaches, Dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to a poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapiesin is a certain cure for all stomach misery, because it will take hold of your food and digest it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Actual, prompt relief for all your stomach misery is at your Pharmacist, waiting for you.

These large 50-cent cases contain more than sufficient to cure a case of Dyspepsia or Indigestion. 10-13

Mam'selle Celestine

By WILLIAM DRYSDALE

Copyright, 1905, by American Press Association

He stepped aside a few paces, and a moment later they saw him on his knees beside a giant palm, his clasped hands high above his head, the moon shining full upon his upraised face. Chat shuddered to see this Christian minister invoking heaven's blessing upon the nunnery that he thought was to release him from a witch's spell. Next minute they knocked at Celestine's door.

The young old woman answered the summons and with a sweep of her arm invited them to enter. She took them through the first room into a second, where seven or eight candles were burning, all short ends but one. Thick curtains hung over the closed windows, and in the center a corked bottle was suspended under the roof by a cord. Immediately under the bottle was an armchair, with a banjo lying in it, and three other chairs stood against the wall. Between the windows was a low cushion, upon which lay a coal black cat, and beside the cushion a saucer half full of water.

"Be seated, gentlemen," Celestine said. Her appearance was exactly the opposite of what Chat had expected. Instead of wearing the gaudy, bespangled dress usually affected by old workers on such occasions, she was clad from head to foot in black, with no ornament but a small brooch at her throat.

As the three took the chairs to which she pointed the cat walked over and rubbed its head and sides against their legs, then returned to its cushion.

"This is a time of rejoicing, gentlemen," Celestine said, taking up the banjo and seating herself in the armchair. "A holy man is about to be released from the power of evil. We must rejoice with music and dancing. Your shadow has been caught, Mr. Sweeting, but I have been strong enough to recover it. See!" And she pointed to the bottle suspended above her head. "I cannot release it without dancing. You must dance the evil power under your feet. When I play you must dance, and you shall be delivered."

She began twanging the banjo, making at first a few weird, mournful sounds, which gradually grew louder and faster till they melted into a lively dancing tune, surprisingly like a jig. She nodded her head toward the preacher, keeping time with the music, and he arose and took a step or two, as though testing the quality of his age stiffened muscles. Perhaps the music and the motion revived long buried memories of earlier years. He was soon in full motion, round and round Celestine's chair. Faster and faster went the music; faster and faster went the preacher. The magistrate looked on with awe, and Chat hardly knew whether to be indignant or to laugh.

Gradually one candle after another burned out, leaving the room in semi-darkness. Suddenly the music ceased for an instant while Celestine reached up and seized the bottle, pulled it from its fastening and hurled it against a corner of the wall, where it broke into a thousand pieces.

"Dance them down; dance them down!" she exclaimed, going on with the music. The preacher continued his dance around her chair. And the black cat, aroused by the noise, walked over to the broken bottle and smelled the pieces. On its way back to the cushion it stopped to lap up water from the saucer.

When the last candle but one had expired the music ceased and the preacher sank into his chair exhausted.

"It is accomplished, gentlemen," Celestine said, rising and throwing open the door, for the atmosphere was stifling, "but not without some sacrifice. See!"

She bent over the cat and gently picked it up by the back of the neck, but it made no movement. The cat was dead and growing stiff.

When the clergyman opened his mouth to thank her for her good offices Celestine silenced him by raising her hand warningly, and not another word was spoken. Silently they were bowed out and silently they separated, for Chat was too wise to expostulate with the others while they were awe-stricken with what they had seen. He realized that Celestine had cunningly arranged the whole performance for his benefit, to show not only that the magistrate and the preacher were in her power, but that her power over them was strong enough to compel the aged pastor to spend a half hour in dancing.

"Poor cat!" he said to himself. "It was a handsome cat too. Of course, the water in the saucer was poisoned. A few Brinvilliers leaves soaked in the water beforehand did the business for pussy."

For weeks after this Chatfield had no more direct contact with old Mam'selle Celestine. It was not easy to talk with the magistrate and with the pastor about it, for the moment they became silent as the grave.

That a Christian minister should be a believer in what was disgusting to him, but it did not surprise him, because he had seen the curious combination of Christianity and old-ism in other countries.

Meanwhile he saw more than ever of Mam'selle Celestine; so much that it dawned even upon his masculine mind that so many meetings could not be altogether accidental. He was not displeased that she made frequent visits to the school, that he met her almost daily on the beach, under the palms, in the little shops, wherever he went. She was a beautiful young woman, the only companionable person on the island, and he could not help taking an interest in her. Walking on the beach one evening, the beautiful white beach, shining under the full moon, she suddenly appeared.

"Beware of your shadow!" she laughed. "It is very plain on this white sand, and you know there are shadow catchers about."

"That is a fair challenge for you," Chat replied. "There is a glorious shadow ten or twelve feet long. Catch it if you can."

"It is not shadows I want to talk about tonight," she said, "but realities. I am not always dealing with shadows."

"I wish you would never have anything to do with them at all," Chat retorted.

"Pshaw!" she exclaimed. "Shadows! I need not tell you what I think of shadow catching and all the rest of the old stuff. You must know why I practice upon the credulity of these ignorant people, but you do not know the whole of my plan. That is what I want to tell you tonight. You remember I told you at the beginning that I was the cause of the old schoolmaster's leaving. It was very simple—a word here, some bottles hung there, a rooster's head or two in front of the magistrate's door, and I could have removed a dozen schoolmasters."

Faster and faster went the music.

"But that was only a beginning," she went on. "You have seen what I can do with your pupils and what I can do with the magistrate and the preacher. Those two are the only men on the island who have even the pretense of knowledge, always excepting yourself. Where they go the others follow. Every man, woman and child on this island is afraid of old Mam'selle Celestine. I made the poor old preacher dance merely to show you how completely I can control him. They think themselves Christians, these foolish people, and a child could make them worship a bit of broken glass. It is not for the sake of seeing them dance, surely, that I manage them. I want better things of them than that."

"And what is it you want of them?" Chat asked. "What is the plan you speak of?"

"I want my own little kingdom in the sea," Celestine replied, more gravely than he had ever heard her speak. "I want these people to fear me and build a fine house for me—oh, much finer than anything they have here now—and to know that I am the mistress of them all. I shall be their queen, with greater power here than the real queen, who is only a dream to them. You know how far Palmyra is from anywhere. If they appoint a new magistrate I shall bring him into subjection; a new minister, I shall awe him. I am determined upon it."

"Why do you unfold this to me?" Chat asked. "You know I do not believe in such things."

"Believe!" Celestine exclaimed. "It is not necessary for you to believe except in me. We are both young, and we understand each other. I offer you an equal share in the glory and the power if you will give me your influence in the school. The school is the only thing I have to fear. The older people I can control; the younger ones I want brought up to believe in me. The old master would not do it, and I had him removed. With your help in the school you and I can manage this island as completely as though we had an army here. Son-of-a-gun! Take days, weeks. There is comfort to be had here in the way I propose that can be had nowhere else."

Before Chat could reply Celestine was gone, and he was alone on the beach. Her words had made an impression upon him, but not in the way that she intended. Her French pronunciation had always amused him, but she was able to make herself understood. That day, however, he had been turning the pages of the Service in the little school library, wondering what could have induced a school board to send a French grammar to Palmyra, and some of the translated exercises had seemed strangely familiar to him. He was sure now that he had heard one of them used within a few minutes.

On his way home he stopped at the schoolhouse and with the aid of a lighted match found the Service and put it in his pocket. Five minutes later he was looking through the exercises in his own room. "Son-of-a-gun," Celestine had said to him, and there it was, set forth in the book, with its equivalent in English, and with various marks to give the reader an idea of the pronunciation. Then he called to mind some of the other French phrases that Celestine had used. "Il ne tient qu'à vous de réussir," she had told him, and that too was among the exercises, duly translated. "Navez-vous point été là?" "Je n'en pense plus," and a dozen other commonplace sentences that she had used he found ready translated in the book.

"I wonder that did not occur to me before," he said to himself as he rolled into his hammock. "Of course the girl knows no more about French than one of my little pupils. She has learned a few phrases from the grammar and works them in wherever they will fit."

The sun was stealing down through the palms next morning when the schoolmaster was awakened by George's voice.

"Maws boss! Maws boss!" he called through the half open door. "Dere's a steamer at anchor off de landin', sah!"

Chat was up and dressing in a moment. There were voices in the air, for all the people were hurrying down to the beach to see the unusual sight. He threw open the shutter and looked out, and there she lay, about half a mile from the shore, not very large, but trim and shining bravely in the opening sun. As he looked his eyes opened wider and wider. He rubbed the sleep out of them and looked again, then closed the shutter and hastily made a new toilet, putting on garments that Palmyra had not seen before, for the vessel lying at anchor was the steam yacht Rambler, General Fabian's, owner.

That meant that "she" had arrived, she being General Fabian's daughter, Miss Brita Fabian, between whom and Chat, as you may have surmised, there existed something more than an understanding. The Fabians spend every winter in Nassau, always taking their yacht along. In a few minutes Chat was at the landing among the negroes, and Celestine was there, and a launch was coming ashore from the yacht.

When General Fabian and his daughter landed, Chat was prepared to give a warm welcome to Miss Brita, but she had hardly shaken his hand before she turned aside, exclaiming:

"Why, there is!" She had caught sight of a familiar face among the crowd of blacks, but as she spoke the face was turned away and its owner tried to escape.

"Nelly! Nelly Stubbs! Don't you remember me? Come here and speak to me."

To Chat's surprise the person who answered to this summons was Mam'selle Celestine. She advanced unwillingly and took the hand Miss Fabian offered, but her commanding air was gone, her eyes were cast down, her face was pale and she looked anything but the queen she had proposed a few hours before to make herself.

"I have met an old acquaintance," Miss Fabian said to Chat when they were alone. "This is the last place in the world that I should have expected to meet Nelly Stubbs."

"Nelly Stubbs!" Chat repeated. "We know her here by the name of Mam'selle Celestine!"

"Mam'selle Celestine!" Miss Fabian laughed. "Mam'selle Humbug. That is just like the girl, but her name is Nelly Stubbs. She was my maid for three winters in Nassau and did very well, though her head was always full of romantic notions. She had never been away from Nassau. Her mother was very light colored, almost white, and after being a widow for many years she married a man from some of these islands. After the mother's death the man took Nelly away somewhere, and I had no thought of meeting her here."

Chat returned to Nassau in the yacht, and everybody has read of the wedding that soon followed. Rumor had it that Miss Brita made remarks when Chat told her of his experience with Nelly Stubbs, but Chat remained platonically loyal to Mam'selle Celestine; said he had allowed her to propose to him, and he would not upset her plans by exposing them. He is a thoroughly good fellow, as I said before, and the mam'selle is no doubt catching the shadow of a new schoolmaster by this time.

As Helpless as a Child.

Rheumatism the Cause

Finds Almost Immediate Relief in Uric-O.

The Remedy Recommended Alone for This One Disease.

T. B. Singleton, 919 North Elizabeth St., Lima, Ohio, advises all who suffer with Rheumatism, no matter what form to commence at once a Uric-O treatment, and find in it a harmless, speedy cure.

"After being stricken down with Rheumatism for four years, in which time I spent over $400.00 with doctors and treatment at Sanatoriums, I have found relief here in my own town a remedy of wonderful merit. Through the recommendation of Druggist Vorkamp, I have used two bottles of Uric-O, and can truthfully say that it has done me more good than all the other medicines, baths and doctors combined. Through it I was at times as helpless as a child and could not even dress myself. Since taking Uric-O, I feel as active in my limbs as ever, I am again an able-bodied man."

Anyone suffering with this terrible disease, should at once procure a bottle of this remedy.

Uric-O is sold at Noyes Drug Store at 75c and $1.00 a bottle. You can obtain a liberal sample by writing to the Smith Drug Co., 208 Smith Bldg., Syracuse, N. Y.

LEFT ON HER DOORSTEP FOR THIS MOTHER

Mrs. A. G. Tuson of Livermore, Cal., writes: "I picked up from my doorstep one day a little book in which I soon became very much interested. My little girl of five years of age had been troubled for a long time with loss of appetite, extreme nervousness and undue fatigue. She was all run-down and in a very delicate condition."

"This little book was very comprehensively written, and told of the new method of extracting the medicinal elements of the cod's liver from the oil, eliminating the obnoxious oil which is so hard for children to take."

"Just the thing," said I, "for my little daughter," and I immediately went for a bottle of Vinol. It helped her wonderfully. She has gained rapidly in flesh and strength, and she does not take cold half so easily."

"I am extremely grateful for the good it has done her, and I hope other mothers who have weak, delicate or ailing children will be benefited by my experience and just give Vinol a trial."

Vinol is sold in Norway by Frank P. Stone, Druggist.

THE TULIP CRAZE

About the middle of the seventeenth century the tulip became known in Germany, and a scientist named Gesner gives the first description of his flower. First only the yellow variety was known, and then other colors were produced by crossing. The Dutch, particularly the citizens of Haarlem, produced the most wonderful varieties of this flower and obtained enormous prices for them.

In 1634 the trade in tulips assumed a peculiar turn. It degenerated into a sort of game of chance, so that in 1637 the authorities felt called upon to interfere and to issue edicts against extravagance in tulips, as they formerly had against trains and laces. This interference would seem to be justified if one reads that in 1606 a single flower of this sort, called the Viccori, was paid for with two cargoes of wheat, four cargoes of rye, four fat oxen, eight fat hogs, twelve fat sheep, two casks of wine, four barrels of beer, two tons of butter, 1,000 pounds of cheese, a complete bed, a suit of clothing and a silver tankard.

Another bulb, the Semper Augustus, was paid for with 4,600 gold guilders and a coach with a double team of horses. In Haarlem the tulip craze reached its height in the decade from 1630 to 1640, when a price of 12,000 gold guilders (about $9,000 American money) is recorded for a single bulb.

WHERE ORCHARDS ARE SMALL

In portions of the country where individual orchards are small, but situated close together, a central cooking plant may often be used in co-operation or by an individual who supplies the lime-sulphur wash during the spraying season to the orchardists of the community. The practicability of this plan has already been demonstrated.

WATERFORD

Mrs. James M. Burckes.

Mrs. Rebecca Horr Burckes, wife of James M. Burckes, died at her home, 18 Sargent avenue, Somerville, Mass., Thursday morning, March 4th, shortly after 8 o'clock.

About a week before her decease she was seized with an attack of grip which developed into pneumonia on Monday, March 1st, when she took to her bed, and which resulted in her death.

Mrs. Burckes was a native of this town and was born on Sept. 12th, 1831, being the daughter of Stephen and Anna (Adams) Horr. She was married to Mr. Burckes Dec. 19, 1852, and they observed their golden anniversary in December, 1902. For over 35 years preceding her death she made her home in Somerville, to which place she and her husband removed from Charlestown, Mass. Of a quiet and retiring nature she had devoted her life to her family, to whom it was her delight to minister; and her unselfishness and thoughtfulness led her to render, kindly and unobtrusively, needed assistance to neighbors and friends.

Besides her husband she is survived by five children: J. Henry Burckes of Nora, Marion county, Ind.; John Wilson and Ernest W. Burckes of Waltham, Mass.; and Arthur L. Burckes and Mrs. Emma B. Jones of Somerville, Mass.

The deceased also leaves 12 grandchildren, two of whom were especially loved by her. One son, Fred Burckes, died in 1887.

Mrs. Burckes was a member of the Broadway Congregational church of Somerville. The burial was in Oak Grove cemetery, Medford, Mass.

The Lightning Rod Man.

Worthless Bonds.

A smooth tongued, city talking, lightning rod man visited some of the good farmers in Oxford County two years ago. He put up lightning rods on barns and houses, and guaranteed them with an apparently good bond, if the buildings were not damaged by lightning in the next 20 years if the rod was kept in position.

He did a thriving business and "roded" buildings wherever he could, at the highest possible price, taking notes when cash was not handy.

He did business with farmers in West Paris, Woodstock, Hebron, Mechanic Falls and Canton.

Alton K. Day of Woodstock, gave his note for $50 for lightning arresters for his barn. This was in 1907. In July, 1908, his barn was struck by lightning, a few feet from one of the rods, and was set on fire and burnt. It is a condition of the bond that the Company must be notified within 60 days of the fire.

The signers of the bond were E. Bacon & Co., of Cleveland, Ohio, by Chas. Wilson, agent. Mr. Day's first letter, sent to the Company was not returned, but a registered letter sent them was refused.

The collection of the bond was put in the hands of Walter L. Gray, Esq., of South Paris. His correspondence with the firm received the same treatment as did Mr. Day's.

Investigation made by Mr. Gray resulted in showing that E. Bacon & Co. had had desk room in an office in Cleveland, and were irresponsible.

At the time of the Day fire, Lightning Rod Wilson was working in Canton. He immediately skipped town, county and state, as far as anyone can ascertain.

Among those who did business with the aforesaid oily tongued gentleman, and have since long worthless indemnifying bonds, can be mentioned:

Frank P. Cole, Solan Curtis, Will B. Davis, George Davis, Dana Dudley, and Granville H. Felt, of Woodstock.

E. W. Panley or Walter Penley, and Geo. A. Richardson, of Greenwood.

Ezekiel Morrill, H. K. Stetson, Representatives A. A. Nelson and Samuel Whittemore, of Hebron.

Rollin Stetson of Sumner; Chas. Millett of Minor; Frank W. Noyes (the farmer), Norway, and undoubtedly, others.

Adna R. Bucknam of West Paris, bought a considerable bunch of Agent Wilson's farmer's notes, paying such prices as they could agree on. It is said he has collected enough of the notes to make himself whole, and perhaps a little to the good, though it is said he holds one seventy-five dollar note against an insolvent estate, which will pay a very small per cent.

The lightning rods may be all right; they are ornamental anyhow, but Alton K. Day and Lawyer Gray of South Paris, say the indemnifying bonds signed by E. Bacon & Co., are worthless.

EAST OTISFIELD.

A Pleasant Time. Frederick Robie Grange had a very pleasant time at their meeting last Saturday evening. After the regular business was over a poverty social was enjoyed. Several couples were dressed in very attractive costumes. John Cleveland and Mrs. Josiah Witham received the prize for best display (cracker and berry). The reason given for each one being so poverty stricken were very laughable, giving a whole evening's entertainment.

A pleasant program of readings and music was then given, the most enjoyable being the poetry lecturer (Mrs. Witham) telling of the "sights" she had been in, floods, fires and wars of all kinds and among all classes of people. Judging by her costume, especially her "merry widow," we did not doubt her word. A full attendance and several visitors were present.

A fine treat appropriate for the occasion was given by the lecturer, after which a time was passed by the young people in games. Wardwell and Burns of Oxford Grange furnished music.

Mrs. Lucy Wyman of Bridgton visited Mrs. C. E. Holden last Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Sanford Annis of Otisfield Gore were at Wallace Stone's last Sunday.

Bernie Linnell and a lady friend of Lewiston spent last Sunday with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Linnell.

Rev. Lyman Rollins has returned to his church work at Otisfield and Casco, having been absent several months on account of illness. The hour of service at the F. B. church at East Otisfield on Sundays will be at 10:30 a. m. until further notice.

E. A. Barton of Casco spent Sunday at Peter Wood's.

Bessie Kemp spent last Friday with Mrs. Sybil Lamb.

Millie Lessaw of Oxford is visiting her sister, Mrs. H. M. Stone.

Frankie Morse of Casco spent Sunday with his mother, Mrs. Nellie E. Morse.

George Frost and wife of Norway visited his brother, Frank E. Frost, Sunday.

Mrs. S. L. Dingley of Mechanic Falls visited at J. T. Brown's a part of last week.

Women as Well as Men are Made Miserable by Kidney and Bladder Trouble.

Kidney trouble preys upon the mind,
discourages and lessens vitality; beauty,
vigor and cheerfulness
soon disappear
when the kidneys are out of order or diseased.

Kidney trouble has become so prevalent
that it is not uncommon for a child to be born afflicted with weak kidneys. If the child urinates too often, if the urine smells
the flesh, or if, when the child reaches an age when it should be able to control the passage, it is yet afflicted with bed-wetting, depend upon it, the cause of the difficulty is kidney trouble, and the first step should be towards the treatment of these important organs. This unpleasant trouble is due to a diseased condition of the kidneys and bladder and not to a habit as most people suppose.

Women as well as men are made miserable with kidney and bladder trouble,
and both need the same great remedy.
The mild and the immediate effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It is sold by druggists, in fifty-cent and one-dollar bottles. You may have a sample bottle by mail free, also a pamphlet telling all about Swamp-Root. Home of Swamp-Root is at 219 North Second Street, Philadelphia.
Thousands of testimonials received from sufferers who found Swamp-Root to be just the remedy needed. In writing Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., be sure and mention this paper. Don't make any mistake when you remember the name, Dr.
Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address,
Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

EAST WATERFORD.

Clayton McFotrie and wife are visiting friends in Portland.

Howard Morrison of Bridgton called at Fred Knightly's, Sunday.

Julia Howe has been sick, also Harold Howe and William Knightly.

Sam Young and family called at Norway town farm recently, buying veal calves.

J. B. Haskell and Henry Knightly were in Hallowell Saturday night and Sunday.

Easy to Mix This.

What will appear very interesting to many people here is the article taken from a New York daily paper, giving a simple prescription, which is said to be a positive remedy for backache or kidney or bladder derangement, if taken before the stage of Bright's disease:
Fluid Extract Dandelion, one half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces. Shake well in a bottle and take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and again at bedtime.
A well known druggist here at home,
when asked regarding this prescription,
stated that the ingredients are all harm-
less, and can be obtained at a small cost
from any good prescription pharmacy,
or the mixture would be put up if asked
to do so. He further stated that while
this prescription is often prescribed in rheumatic affections with splendid results, he could see no reason why it would not be a splendid remedy for kidney and urinary troubles and backache,
as it has a peculiar action upon the kidney structure, cleansing these most important organs and helping them to sift and filter from the blood the foul solids
and waste matter which cause sickness and suffering. Those of our readers who suffer can make no mistake in giving it a trial.

The nomination of Clarence L. Riddon
of West Paris was confirmed March 1st.

Salt.

If a vote were taken as to what is the most indispensable household supply, thinking people would likely agree on common table salt. It is so essential to food be without salt to bring out the flavor? Even sweet puddings need a pinch or two. And witness its manifold uses as a cleanser and preserver says an exchange.

In the sick room salt and water make a good gargle for an inflamed or chronic sore throat, and an outward application
will strengthen the chest after an attack
of bronchitis; it may be used to strengthen a spasmodic limb, and for those who cannot enjoy sea bathing, a bath in salt
water occasionally is very refreshing.

Used as a tooth powder it cleanses the teeth and strengthens the gums, and it is sometimes recommended as a cure for dyspepsia, taken in hot water early in the morning.

For unborn children rubbing with damp salt is one of the best remedies known.

In the kitchen its antiseptic and preservative qualities are of great value, and strengthening the organisms that promote the decomposition it is invaluable for keeping fish, meat and many other supplies.

The quantity of salt used for curing
fish is almost incredible.

When mixed with common ice it lowers
the temperature to 32 degrees below freezing point, and advantage is taken of this property in making ices. But apart from these qualities there are many other ways in which it can be used. A pinch of salt added to the whites of eggs will cause them to whip in half the time
usually required.

If a chimney catches fire, salt thrown on it from a height will put out the flames.
Again, when the fire is a sweep, a handful or two thrown over the soot will keep the particles from floating about.

It brightens as well as extinguishes fire, as a teaspoonful of salt put into the oil of a lamp makes it give a brighter light.

Then when broiling a chop or steak a little salt thrown on the fire lowers the flame and makes a more suitable fire for the purpose.

FRYEBURG CENTER.

Mrs. Ruth J. Buzzell has been quite poorly for a week past.

Lyman Hobbs and Fred Holt are both sick with very bad colds.

Mrs. C. P. Gray is recovering from what her physician thinks may be chicken pox.

Mrs. Fred Kennerson has been quite sick for a week past and attended by her physician.

James Emerson is very feeble and almost helpless from a fall in his room a short time ago.

C. P. Gray has the telephone in his house and is very busy attending to his warden duties.

Frank Haley and family of North Conway are to move soon into C. E. Buzzzell's rent, the old Quilt house.

The Odd Fellows and Rebekahs are rehearsing for the drama, "Old Silas,"
which they will play at the ball soon.

Mrs. Hannah Walker, who has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Noyes, intends to return to Intervale, N. H., this week.

Felix Chandler of North Conway, who
stated that the ingredients are all harm-
less, and can be obtained at a small cost
from any good prescription pharmacy,
or the mixture would be put up if asked
to do so. He further stated that while
this prescription is often prescribed in

BUCKFIELD.

Mrs. C. H. Prince has been in Portland with her daughter, Mrs. John Shearman.

Buckfield Grange observed Flag day
at their meeting Saturday, March 6th,
by appropriate exercises.

W. C. Spaulding and Mrs. Louise Spaulding of Caribou have been with
Mr. Spaulding's brother, Benjamin Spaulding.

Eugene Elmer Jordan, son of Mrs.
Maggie Jordan, died after a brief illness at the age of 23 years. The funeral was held from the Methodist church, Rev.
Lamb officiating. Mr. Jordan was a genial, industrious young man with those traits which win many friends by whom he will be greatly missed.

The funeral of Mrs. Rebecca Keene, widow of Daniel Blak Keene, late of Sumner, was held from the home of her daughter, Mrs. Annie Gault, of this place. Mrs. Keene was 73 years of age, and is survived by three children, Mrs. Chas.
Braden and Laurien Keene of Sumner and Mrs. Gault. She was a daughter of the Revolution and a member of the church here. The burial was in the Capt. Bisbee cemetery, Rev. Mr. Pottle officiating clergyman.

In all probability the work of rebuilding the wharf and sheds, at Portland, destroyed by fire at the Grand Trunk several weeks ago, will be started in a short time as the Grand Trunk officials have had several plans made.

Wheeler or Sneezer?

Have You Heard of Hymel for Catarrh,
Asthma and Hay Fever?

If you wheeze or sneeze, hawk or spit,
snuffle or blow, something is the matter
with the membrane of your respiratory tract, and you need Hymel.

And you need Hymel because it will cure you of any catarrhal or inflammatory condition that exists.

It isn't a stomach medicine, or spray,
or douche, but a pleasant, healing,
antiseptic balsam, from the eucalyptus forests of Australia. You breathe this balsamic air through a small, hard rubber inhaler, and it reaches every nook,
corner and crevice of the membrane,
and promptly kills the catarrh germs.

Frank Kimball will sell you a complete Hymel (pronounced High-o-me) outfit
for $1.00, on the moneyback plan.
The new Hymel cured Mr. Cutler of catarrh 1904. He has strongly endorsed the use of Hymel in many instances, and we are glad to go on record
regarding this marvelous catarrh cure,
and endorse it. Mrs. A. Cutler,

Extensive Logging Operations.
It is expected that the quite extensive logging operations included in this territory which have kept over a score of the able bodied residents of the vicinity actively employed during the season will be completed this week. A few hundred thousands of the logs go to B.
McIntire's mill here to be sawed into boards. The remainder, about a million and a half, go to the river men.

A rough estimate E. C. Buzzell's
will strengthen the chest after an attack
of bronchitis; it may be used to strengthen a spasmodic limb, and for those who
cannot enjoy sea bathing, a bath in salt
water occasionally is very refreshing.

The apparent forest destruction in this locality needs cause the conservationists no uneasiness since hundreds of acres of former tillage and pasture land in this section has a 50 years growth of forest
to take the place of that lately removed.

In advance of the forest conservation movement 25 years ago the writer assisted in setting out, by thinning and trans-planting from the road side, several hundred pine trees upon the homestead farm on tracts of land valuable for other purposes. Several thrifty groves are now doing their part in the re-forestation
work as the outcome.

Rilla Hill, formerly of this place
now at Waltham, Mass., is quite ill but with hope of recovery and is attended by her mother, Mrs. S. W. Hill.

S. W. Hill of Green Hill neighborhood, returned from a week's visit with his brother, Andrew J. Hill of Haverhill, Mass., who was suffering from a severe attack of rheumatism.

Byron Hutchins was obliged to leave off work in the woods on account of sickness and required the aid of a doctor several times before recovery. He is about in his usual health at present.

The town of Fryeburg buys a motor snow roller of our mill man, E. P. Mc-Intire, which from any viewpoint you take is a compliment to the inventor, and all his friends, and they are many, are extending congratulations.

Frank Hutchins received an injury while in the woods at work several weeks ago and was carried to his home,
where he has been under the treatment of physicians, and is now thought to be recovering from pneumonia caused by the accident.

In a late Portland paper occurs a notice of G. L. Stridmont, M. D., as a conductor of a festival chorus in North Yarmouth. As a young man Dr. Stridmont is well remembered in this section in a musical way and was popular with the young people, who will be glad to know
of his success in his new home.

Mr. and Mrs. Madison Weeks of South Oxford, who have been spending the winter in Florida, are heard from as being much pleased with conditions in that state. A sister of Mrs. Weeks has been a resident of Florida for several years with her husband and family.

Abraham Anderson of Center Fryeburg visited his niece, Mrs. George H.
Hill at her ancestral home in South Oxford on Saturday, and reported his sister, Lydia Frances Thompson, as very sick and not expected to recover, at her home in Manchester, N. H. Mrs.
Thompson was a native of South Oxford.

At a meeting of the Stirling club at the home of Louise Ballard, recently, Mrs. Marion Chandler of Bridgton, one of the original members of the club, was present for the first time since her removal to Bridgton. Mrs. Chandler's reception was very cordial and the days of her visit with relatives and friends in South Paris must have been mutually pleasant.

The Stirling Literary club holds meetings on the first and third Tuesdays of each month, even stormy weather failing to prevent attendance at its sessions.
At Mr. Edith Hart's last week there was a good attendance, each member giving a quotation from the poet Chaucer and all giving the closest attention to the reading of papers by Mrs. Emma Walker and Mrs. Abbie Andrews, which gave the principal events in the reigns of the English kings, Edward I, II, and III. Bruce's Address was sung by one of the members and Mrs. E. H. Hardy
and Mrs. M. A. Hill sang Mrs. Heman's Evening Song to the Virgin Adjournment. A general sing about the piano for a brief time before the departure for the several homes of members.

HEBRON.

An all-day meeting of Hebron Grange was held Mar. 10, with Bro. L. Keene acting as master. Visiting members from East Hebron Grange were present.
The brothers were to have charge of the meeting. On account of bad weather etc., a few brothers were present, but the sisters helped them about their singing and dinner. Some of the brothers gave declamations. Selections by Bro.
Ernest Packard from Kipling, Will Carleton, Holman Day. Two selections
by Bro. G. G. Saffers of East Hebron Grange were enjoyed as also were two by Bro. Charles Marshall and one by Bro.
Llewellyn Keene. In the forenoon Brother and Sister W. G. Conant were installed as assistant steward and lady assistant steward.

Mr. and Mrs. Guy Hinckley of Bang-sley are guests of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. B. B.

A little child of Mrs. Rose Trimball is ill with pneumonia. Florence Smith, who lives in the same house, is ill.

Mrs. S. C. Howe, whose dwelling in Hebron was nearly destroyed by fire the 6th, has secured a rent in the D. F.
Bailey house and will move in as soon as possible.

KEZAR FALLS.

Mrs. Joshua Elliott, who has been visiting her daughter, Mrs. H. J. Pike in Westbrook, has returned home.

The game of basket ball played in Cholls last Friday evening between Non Paraisfield senior and Kezar
Falls resulted in a victory for the home team. Score 23 to 17.
